

Field day on “Agricultural Resources Management Strategies in flood plain area at Bodrayl, Habibpur, Malda, West Bengal

A field day on “Agricultural Resources Management Strategies in flood plain area” was organized at Bodrayl village, block Habibpur, Malda, West Bengal on 02/12/2022. The programme was organized by ICAR-Research Complex for Eastern Region, Patna in association with ICAR-

Central Institute for Subtropical Horticulture, Regional Research Station/KVK, Madhabnagar, Malda. Around 120 small & marginal SC/ST farmers were participated in this programme wherein 90% were female Dr. Shailesh Kumar, Senior scientist of KVK, Madhabnagar, Malda addressed farmers and discussed about fisheries management in flood affected area for enhancing farmers' income, Dr. Narayana Bhakata , principal scientist, ICAR RCER, Patna discussed about the use of flood tolerant rice varieties like IR64 sub1, and Swarna sub1 in flood affected area for sustainable yield, Dr. Rohan Kumar Raman, scientist, ICAR-RCER, Patna told the benefits of FPO and importance of value addition in agricultural products for more income generation in flood affected area for enhancing farmers income for better livelihood. A healthy discussion was held between farmers and scientists during programme. In this programme Sri Anirudha Mahapatra, Smt.Minati Mandal Hazra,Haridas Mondal and Bochhan mondal were also present.