

Three days training programme for Farmers of Bihar Koshi Basin Project on “Recent Advances in Goat Production and Management “was conducted at ICAR Research Complex for Eastern Region Patna from 10- 12 Feb 2021. The inauguration function was attended by Heads of Divisions and scientists of DLFM division. The inauguration function was graced by presence of Chief Guest -Dr. J K Prasad, Dean, Bihar Veterinary College. He delivered guest lecture on “Present status and prospect of goat rearing in Bihar”. During the training course, farmers were imparted knowledge on different aspects i.e health, reproduction, nutrition, and housing management for scientific goat rearing .The training programme ended with the valedictory function on 12 Feb 2021. The function was graced by respected director sir, Dr. Ujjwal Kumar, Head of Divisions- Dr. A Upadhyay, Dr. Kamal Sarma, Dr. A. K.Chowdhary and scientists of the division. All the trainee farmers were distributed certification for successful completion of their training. Director Sir offered best wishes to the trainee farmers for their future endeavors.

